The primary purpose of this study was to determine whether anticoagulant therapy was associated with poor outcome after cardiac surgery. The secondary aim was to identify specific subgroups where poor outcome might be predicted by use of anticoagulant agents. Over a period of 14 months, in a single institution, 1,544 patients who underwent cardiac surgery were included in the study. They were divided into three groups based on the anticoagulant agents given in the perioperative period: control (n = 1,059), low-molecular-weight heparin (n = 374), and unfractionated heparin (n = 57). Of these patients, 58 died (4.1%). All patients receiving unfractionated heparin were associated with a decrease in survival (5.9%, P = .003), and those receiving low-molecular-weight heparin had no decrease in survival. Poor outcome was predicted by increasing age, renal failure, diabetes, left vent

Pastor John Hagee is being vilified today for his clarion call for action in support of Israel. This is hardly a surprise, for Hagee has been one of Israel's most ardent supporters. A longtime leader of the Three Generational Legacy International, an independent Christian Zionist organization dedicated to fulfilling prophecy, he became a favorite guest of Israeli leader Benjamin Netanyahu and is now related by marriage to Russian Prime Minister Vladimir Putin. In this exclusive WorldNetDaily exclusive, The Hagee Club interviews five prominent Jewish scholars about Pastor Hagee and his spot in Jewish religious history. * He's a Baptist theologian, a famous preacher and religious historian, and a symbol of hope for many Jews. His name is John Hagee. He's been called 'Israel's Hagee,' and 'Israel's Colin Powell.' Pastor Hagee has become a symbol of hope for many Jews worldwide, despite his leadership in the infamous 'Church Of Persecution.' On May 10, 1981, at the height of the Temple Mount crisis over the desecration of the area, the New York Times reported that approximately 100,000 Israelis and Arabs stood in the shadow of the Jaffa Gate and sang 'Amazing Grace' as a symbolic salute to the Israelis who had been killed in the riots. The Spirit of Jerusalem, a yearly celebration of Israel's biggest Jewish holiday, that climaxes in Jerusalem's rededication of the Western Wall, was organized by Pastor Hagee. Pastor Hagee was in Jerusalem on May 11, 1985, to give what the New York Times dubbed a
